of love. It is true that adventure is a supreme element in the modern short story, but when the adventure is one of love it makes the best sort of story. Every story which deals with human beings must deal with man and woman. Place a man and a woman in any position in which they are interested to each other and to the world, and what is the result? Almost invariably a love story.

"What do you think of women as short-story writers?"
"Everything!" Woman is in her element in this sort of work. Her fine sensibilities and her strong emotional power especially fit her for it. She is decidedly the equal of any man in this field. Indeed, it is my opinion that in time women will drift more and more toward the work and men will leave it to the women. Fiction and poetry are women's best field; history and politics belong to man.

"But the short story is not dying out. It is growing shorter and more popular every day."

Traits of Dickens.

London Express.

"One peculiarity about Dickens I remember well," writes Mr. Justin McCarthy in his chatty article on celebrities.

"He had an intense love for the open air, and even in the depths of a London winter, he came into the house of a friend and entered a room the windows of which were closed, his first business seemed to be to throw all the windows open, and make the apartment as breezy as it could be made in a London street."

"Curiously enough, that sort of nervous trepidation which I always felt in the presence of Dickens never possessed me when I came near him. He was a man who made the apartment as breezy as it could be made in a London street."

"I have a melancholy recollection which can never leave me of a dinner party to which I was invited at Thackeray's house. I had written a long letter, and was very much occupied on a subject of controversy, which then deeply interested Thackeray, and he had invited me to dine with him, and have a talk over the whole matter. That dinner party never came off, for just before the day fixed for it Thackeray was found dead in his bed."

To Serialize or Not to Serialize?

Publishers' Bulletin.

It is said that Mr. Kipling's new book, which is to be brought out in the spring, will not be issued serially in any magazine; and The American Author, in which the rumor is printed, goes on to surmise that "perhaps successful authors are becoming convinced that serializing their works tends to injure the after sales."

This is a long-mooted question, and though, like all such matters, it is subject to argument, yet the facts in the case are rather convincingly in favor of the serial. Mrs. Ward's "Eleanor" was published serially, but, despite this, it had an immense sale; and later "The Right of Way," which also ran in Harper's Magazine, met with an even more pronounced success when published in book form. So that the question still remains open for discussion.

CONGRESS OF WOMEN

DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION IN CONVENTION.

Mrs. C. W. Fairbanks, President General, Opens the Meeting and Is Greeted with Applause.

POPULAR WITH DELEGATES AND WELL POSTED ON ALL POINTS OF PARLIAMENTARY LAW.

Her Address of Welcome—Illinois and New York Trouble Given Another Brief Alighting.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The eleventh annual continental congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution convened at 10 o'clock this morning at Chase Grand Opera House, with Mrs. Charles Warren Fairbanks, wife of the senior senator from Indiana, in the chair and over 80 delegates present. It was a representative gathering of clever women, the majority of whom were handsomely, though not showily, gowned, and in every way typical of the noble and sterling qualities characteristic of the men from whom they are lineally descended. The interior decoration of the theater was not so gorgeous as at previous congresses, owing to the generosity of the Daughters in giving the use of it to-night for the play performed for sweet charity's sake by the society folk of Eastern cities.

The opening of the congress to-day marked the first occasion when Mrs. Fairbanks officiated as president general of that body, she having been elected at the close of last year's session. Being very popular with the delegates, she was loudly applauded when she came forward to announce that the time had come to begin the work of the convention. The chaplain general of the society, Mrs. William A. Smoot, of Virginia, invoked the divine blessing on the proceedings, after which the audience, fully 1,500 women, sang the "Star-spangled Banner," each one joining in with a will. For some minutes after rising for her address Mrs. Fairbanks was silenced by the tumultuous applause that greeted her and she was several times interrupted during the delivery of her address. The president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Mrs. Fairbanks, was accompanied by her assistant, the guests enjoyed a view of the valuable historic collections so seldom opened for an evening inspection. The gathering of brilliantly gowned women and, in many instances, uniformed men, was a striking contrast to some of the customs and styles shown in the glass cases. The evening passed as a memorable one in the social life of the capital.

In her address to-day, after expressing her gratification at the numbers of those present, and what they represented, Mrs. Fairbanks urged upon every daughter the cultivation in the highest degree of reverence for the past, and the preservation of the traditions of the past. She also urged the importance of the organization, as the congress was becoming too unwieldy, and said that whatever measure was adopted along this line it would have in view full and complete representation of all the chapters in the country. She showed that there were now approximately 800 chapters, thirty-four chapters having been added during the past year, increasing the membership by 4,800. This makes the total membership over 40,000. The morning session closed with a response by Mrs. John P. Swift, of California, presiding officer of the interests in general of the organization. She referred to the pending proposition to reduce the representation of the order, and said that whatever measure was adopted along this line it would have in view full and complete representation of all the chapters in the country. When the congress reassembled this afternoon, Mrs. Fairbanks presided, and the morning session closed with a response by Mrs. John P. Swift, of California, presiding officer of the interests in general of the organization. She showed that there were now approximately 800 chapters, thirty-four chapters having been added during the past year, increasing the membership by 4,800. This makes the total membership over 40,000.

The roll call was interrupted by President General Fairbanks, who read the following telegram from Mrs. Margaret Manning, honorary president general of the order:

"All my love, Feb. 17.—Heartfelt greetings to my daughters and yours. With best wishes for a successful congress. A lively debate was sprung by a resolution offered by Mrs. De Mott, of Illinois, providing that the chair appoint a committee of five members to investigate the facts in the controversy in Warren Chapter, at Monmouth, Ill. Mrs. Lillard, of Bloomington, Ill., and Mrs. Wiles, of Chicago, led the debate. The resolution was adopted by a large majority on an aye and nay vote. Mrs. Fairbanks announced that she would appoint the committee later, and was vigorously fought by Mrs. Donald McLean, of New York, and others. The officials and attorneys were on hand promptly. Mr. Hill was accompanied by M. D. Grover, general counsel for the Great Northern. President Hill, of the Northern Pacific, was accompanied by Frank B. Kellogg and Judge George K. Young, of St. Paul, attorneys for that corporation. Mr. Hill emphasized in his testimony that he could speak only for the Great Northern. Much of the questions put to him were in relation to the acquisition of the Burlington system by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific in which the plaintiff's attorneys seek to establish the fact that there were some irregularities. The hearing will last several days.

MAY PATROL BORDER.

Minnesota Objects to South Dakota Sending Insane Across the Border.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 17.—Shotgun protection, if necessary, is what W. A. C. state agent of the Board of Control, says will be adopted, if the North Dakota officials again try to turn loose their insane patients on the Minnesota side of the boundary line. The particular cause of trouble is one Ole Helseth, formerly of Eau Claire, Wis., but recently residing with a sister in Fargo, who was found insane by the Fargo Probate Court, and ordered transported across the river into Minnesota, the expense of sending him to Eau Claire being too great to be borne, according to the statement of the Fargo official. Mr. Gates promptly carried the man back into North Dakota and notified the authorities that Helseth would not be allowed in Minnesota again, and that the state refused to receive any other non-resident insane persons.

EGGS 80 CENTS A DOZEN.

Hens Will Not Lay Because Their Feet Have Been Frozen.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 17.—Eighty cents a dozen was paid here on Saturday for fresh eggs. Cold storage and wholesalers' supplies have been gone since Wednesday. Fresh eggs were quoted early in the day at 40 cents and rose to 80, at which all were taken. The scarcity is likely to continue for several weeks, as owners of poultry are killing off hens. Live poultry is worth 10 cents a pound. Farmers report that the feet of their hens are frozen and they will not lay perhaps for months. Pittsburg usually would get 100 eggs daily. No eggs are coming from the South or West.

German Official Statement Regarding the Departure of General Augustin from Manila.

BAKU, Transcucania, Feb. 17.—Details which are slowly arriving at Baku from Shemaka show that 2,000 persons, mostly women and children, perished as a result of the earthquake last week, and that 4,000 houses were destroyed. Thirty-four villages of the country surrounding Shemaka also suffered. To add to the terrors of the neighborhood a volcano near the village of Marasy, eastward of Shemaka, has broken out into active eruption. A great crevasse has appeared, whence immense flames and streams of lava are being thrown out. The course of the river Geonchaika has been altered in consequence of its bed being dammed with earth which had been disturbed by the earthquake. Battalions of guards and detachments of soldiers with tents have been dispatched to Shemaka to aid in the work of rescue. The Red Cross Society is active in alleviating distress.

WITH DEWEY'S PERMISSION.

General Augustin Was Taken from Manila on a German Cruiser.

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—In this period of clearing up of what are regarded as the misconceptions abroad and in the United States respecting the role played by Germany in 1908 the Foreign Office takes cognizance of the assertions in the Army and Navy Journal that General Augustin, Governor General of the Philippines, before the capture of Manila, secretly embarked on the German cruiser Kaiserin Augusta. The Foreign Office says: "General Augustin was not taken from Manila secretly or with the connivance of the Germans. But Admiral Von Diederich, with the permission of Admiral Dewey, which was expressly granted for and cheerfully granted, publicly took General Augustin aboard the German cruiser Deutschland, which was carrying the mails to Hong-Kong."
